

Rhode Island After 3PM

In 2009, Rhode Island parents/guardians were asked about their children's regular participation in various after school care arrangements, with a special focus on afterschool program participation and satisfaction. The America After 3PM survey identified the supply of and demand for afterschool programs, as well as the major barriers to program enrollment.

After School Care Arrangements

- 27% (48,021) of Rhode Island's K-12 children are responsible for taking care of themselves after school. These children spend an average of 7 hours per week unsupervised after school.
- 17% (30,607) of Rhode Island's K-12 children participate in afterschool programs. On average, afterschool participants spend 5 hours per week in afterschool programs. Participation averages 2 days per week.
- 70% of Rhode Island K-12 children spend some portion of the hours after school in the care of a parent or guardian.
- Other care arrangements include traditional child care centers (10%), sibling care (14%) and non-parental adult care, such as a grandparent or neighbor (37%).

Notes: The maximum amount of time in after school care arrangements is limited to 15 hours per week, which reflects the after school hours of 3:00 to 6:00 p.m. Care arrangements add up to greater than 100% due to multiple regular care arrangements for many children.

Satisfaction with and Support for Afterschool Programs

- 77% of Rhode Island parents are satisfied with the afterschool program their child attends.
- Rhode Island parents cited affordability (73%), child enjoyment (73%) and quality of facilities (68%) as their top three reasons for selecting an afterschool program.
- 93% of adults surveyed in Rhode Island agree that there should be "some type of organized activity or place for children and teens to go after school every day that provides opportunities to learn" and 86% support public funding for afterschool programs.

Need or Demand for Afterschool

- 38% (55,212) of all Rhode Island children not in afterschool would be likely to participate if an afterschool program were available in the community, regardless of their current care arrangement.
- Parents of non-participants believe that their children would benefit most from afterschool programs in the following ways: by having fun, improving their social skills and workforce skills, obtaining access to caring adults and mentors and taking advantage of opportunities for community service and learning.

Barriers to Enrolling in Afterschool Programs

- After lack of need, the predominant obstacles to enrollment include cost, preference for alternative activities and lack of safe transportation.

Contextual Information about Afterschool Programs

- In Rhode Island, private schools are the largest provider of afterschool programs. Public schools and YMCAs round out the top three providers of afterschool programs in the state.
- On average, Rhode Island families spend $55 per week for afterschool programs.

About America After 3PM

In Rhode Island, 334 households were surveyed for this study. Among those households, 31 percent qualified for free or reduced price lunch, 9 percent were Hispanic and 1 percent was African-American. According to U.S. Department of Education data from 2005-2006, the total school enrollment in Rhode Island is 175,902, which is the foundation for all statewide projections in Rhode Island After 3PM.

America After 3PM was sponsored by the JCPenney Afterschool Fund. Between March and May 2009, 29,754 parents/guardians responded to survey questions about their after school child care arrangements during the 2008-2009 school year. RTi, a market research firm, conducted the survey and analyzed the data for the Afterschool Alliance. Additional information from America After 3PM is available at www.afterschoolalliance.org.
